brochure | web site | cancer planner

Empowers people with cancer and their caregivers to take charge of their diagnosis by providing them with the necessary local and national resources coupled with organization and navigation tools. C101 focuses on the non-medical issues at hand; issues that often distracts the medical community from focusing on important medical care. C101 believes that developing a plan of attack, having the means to stay organized as well as access to appropriate local and national resources is half the battle to getting through this difficult and traumatic time. C101 meets the cancer patient on the front line and turns what is often a chaotic experience into a calm and organized plan of attack.
